THE OFFICIAL NEWSLETTER FOR PARENTS OF TEURLINGS CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

O C T O B E R , 2 0 0 4

From Our Principal .

This publication is one of the many tools which we use to communicate important dates, thoughts and expectations to our school community. On October 18, we will hold a Parent-Teacher Conference day. Students will not attend classes that day. All teachers will be on campus from 11:00 a.m. until 7:00 p.m., in their classrooms, to distribute report cards and meet with parents about the first quarter grades of our students. This is a great opportunity for parents and teachers to communicate with each other and structure a format for success for each and every student.

The Catholic Church has instituted a program called "A Safe Environment for the Protection of Children and Young People." This plan calls for every paid employee and volunteer at any Catholic School or Church Parish to be trained in the subject of child abuse. All of the paid employees and many volunteers at Teurlings Catholic have received the training. On Monday, October 18, all paid staff members will continue their training with a one-hour refresher course. On Tuesday, October 19, from 6:00-8:00 p.m., we will offer the initial two-hour training session of this informative program to any interested parent. The presentation will take place in the school library. We are taking this opportunity to communicate the expectations and requirements of the United States Conference of Bishops. Our students will receive information through their Theology classes.

Teurlings Catholic offered parents the opportunity to be informed about their personal and legal responsibilities relating to teenage parties, alcohol consumption, and drug use during a panel discussion held on September 27. Judge Tommy Duplantier, psychologist Dr. David Legendre, and drug testing specialist and TCH parent Eva Callier, comprised the panel of experts.

The guidance department held an informative meeting with the parents of all seniors on September 29. Graduation requirements and TOPS and scholarship opportunities were the most prominent items on that agenda.

TCH Rebels of all ages will gather together this month as we celebrate Homecoming 2004. Students will participate in daily activities that week, alumni will serve at our Homecoming liturgy on October 21, families are invited to add spirit to the pep rally and bonfire that evening, and everyone will join in the excitement of the game. I hope that you will personally witness the enthusiasm and energy that a homecoming brings to a school community.

As a school, we work very hard to recognize and communicate the many wonderful and exciting achievements of our students. We also work very hard to have discipline and structure, and we will communicate when the desired outcomes are not met. This letter highlights several opportunities that parents have to receive information from and communicate with Teurlings Catholic. Some choose to take advantage of that time, unfortunately, others do not.

DISCIPLINE

Terri Baudier - Assistant Principal

The start of school has been spectacular! The overall student behavior has been really good. The seniors have taken on the leadership role, the freshmen are finally getting comfortable, and the sophomores and juniors are blending right in. The biggest problem we seem to have is boys coming to school unshaven. I ask that parents check to make sure that their sons are clean shaven (no facial hair at all) everyday. If parents leave it up to the students, the students will chance not getting caught. Whether they are a freshman or a senior, they still need your guidance. A couple of other problems are: the girls rolling their waistbands down to wear their shorts/pants on the hips and the boys' haircuts. The boys' hair must be above the eyes, ears, and collar, no exceptions. You may think these violations are minor, but everyone is expected to follow the same rules. Finally, the last mention of uniforms is that all pants must be from one of our four uniform vendors. Pants bought from any other place are not acceptable. See page 66 in the student handbook for more information on our vendors.

Car Riders Please Read!

I have gotten several calls already this year from angry parents who are tired of some people finding ways to get around the car line. We have caught parents waiting in our faculty parking lot as well as parents who park in the grass lot in front of school. Another problem is parents who use the exit lane to get ahead of everyone and pull in by the lounge to pick up. I have made several announcements to the students that if they get caught violating our car rider procedures, they will be written up. I would prefer to spend my time before and after school monitoring the students, not the parents.

Tardies

Students are allowed three tardies per quarter. These tardies are for each class and school combined. After the three excused tardies, all other tardies are unexcused. Please refer to your student handbook for further information.

Teasing/Bullying

If your child is getting teased a lot, please call to let us know. It is very important to us that your child feels safe at school, but more importantly, that your child is happy. We can find ways to deal with this, without letting your child know you have called. You owe it to your child to speak up and not remain silent no matter what they tell you. Please also encourage them to come forward on their own, to either someone on the Honor Council, the disciplinarian, or one of our counselors. This is the first step in helping them to defend themselves. Counselor for grades 9 & 10: ext. 114, for grade 11 & 12: ext. 108, and the disciplinarian: ext. 102. We can't help if we don't know!

Lunches

Parents are not allowed to bring students lunch from fast food restaurants. If a student is seen with a bag from one of these places, it will be picked up. Thanks for your understanding.

ACADEMICS

Marty Heintz - Assistant Principal

Success in School

October has finally arrived. While those of us who thrive on cooler weather are excited, October is a hard month for many students. The first enthusiasm students experience when school begins has evaporated in the midst of homework, tests, projects, and extracurricular activities. On top of that, the first quarter progress reports and report cards arrive and those students who have been "coasting" are hit with a healthy dose of reality with their grades and the teachers' comments.

With all that in mind, I wanted to provide you with a brief version of "Heintz's 57 Ways to Make Sure Your Child Succeeds in School." OK, I'm not going to list 57, but here are some important things you, the concerned parent, can do to make sure your student succeeds:

1. Look for homework. Every student on this campus should have some homework every night. Homework is not just written work but also includes reading the textbook chapter and reading notes each night. Actually, I have asked teachers to limit their written homework assignments to what they feel a student should be able to finish in 10-20 minutes, depending on the grade. Homework has changed from when we parents were in school. Back then, homework was drill and practice. Today's homework instead focuses on applying skills and concepts. The teacher introduces a skill or concept, then the student applies the skill or concept to new material on their own. (Look for more on that below).
2. Review notes and read chapters. Every student on this campus has to study for tests – that's a fact of life. However, rather than spend two to three hours cramming for a Friday test on Thursday night, spending five to 10 minutes a night reviewing notes is a better tactic. Again, if you never see a textbook or notebook come home and never see your student reading them, something is wrong.
3. A rested student performs better and retains more knowledge. A scientifically proven theory is students who are sleep deprived do not test as well and do not remember as much material as students who get the proper amount of sleep. Teens need 8-9 hours of sleep (not computer time, not TV time, not phone time) every day. Do the math. Since we start school at 7:30 am and I'm sure most of our students need to be up by at least 6:30 am, that would put bedtime around 10:30 pm.

4. Finally, know what your student is doing in school and stay in contact with teachers. Teachers love parents who are concerned about their student's progress. A quick check a few times a year with the teacher, even if there are no immediate concerns, keeps your student on his/her toes as well as creates a good impression with the teacher. I don't know about you, but knowing that my mother could pop in to see my teachers at any time kept me trying even harder when I was a school!

New Homework Trends

Our Science and Math Departments recently went through Diocesan in-service training. At both training sessions the teachers were encouraged to move from the old drill and practice homework to the new application of skills and concepts. Forget the 30 math problems a night that focused on practicing (over and over) the same skill that students worked on at school that day. The current philosophy is students do not need as much drill and practice, but instead they need more opportunities for creative thinking and reasoning. Today's homework often combines limited drill and practice with development of reasoning skills by encouraging students to take a skill or concept introduced in class one day and apply the skill to learn something new on their own. If you think about it, it makes sense and is a practice social studies teachers have been using for years. In social studies, students have always been asked to read material before discussing it in class or before the teacher's lecture on the material. Students need to learn to think on their own and, hopefully, our parents and teachers will encourage this process and our students will be life-long learners as a result.

At a recent faculty meeting, Major Roy Frusha and David Legendre were guest speakers on topics about students and drug usage.
